GOSLINGS

BERESFORD, J.D.
When a worldwide plague kills off most of England's male population, the highly conventional Mr. Gosling and his daughters begin to fulfil "long-thwarted tendencies and desires." Gosling abandons his family for a life of lechery, leaving his daughters - who have never been permitted to learn self-reliance - to loot abandoned shops. Eventually, the Gosling girls find a place in a female-dominated agricultural commune... but their new life is threatened by their elders' prejudices about free love. First published in 1913, this is the latest in the Radium Age of Science Fiction reissues from HiLo Books.

EMPTY SPACE

HARRISON, M. John
An alien research tool the size of a brown dwarf star hangs in the middle of nowhere, as a result of an attempt to place it equidistant from everything else in every possible universe. Somewhere in the fractal labyrinth beneath its surface, a woman lies on an allotropic carbon deck, a white paste of nanomachines oozing from the corner of her mouth. She is neither conscious nor unconscious, dead nor alive. There is something wrong with her cheekbones. At first you think she is changing from one thing into another - perhaps it's a cat, perhaps it's something that only looks like one - then you see that she is actually trying to be both things at once. She is waiting for you, she has been waiting for you for perhaps 10,000 years. She comes from the past, she

WOOL

HOWEY, Hugh
In a ruined and hostile landscape, in a future few have been unlucky enough to survive, a community exists in a giant underground silo. Inside, men and women live an enclosed life full of rules and regulations, of secrets and lies. To live, you must follow the rules. But some don't. These are the dangerous ones; these are the people who dare to hope and dream, and who infect others with their optimism. Their punishment is simple and deadly. They are allowed outside. Jules is one of these people. She may well be the last. This is extremely addictive – recommended.

STORMDANCER

KRISTOFF, Jay
Debut author Kristoff's steampunk adventure whisks readers to a Japanese dystopia where some mythological beings still exist, a few people have fantastical gifts, and all people live under tyranny. Yukiko, 16, has an ability the shogun's guild would punish with death: She can commune with animals. When the shogun seeks to win a strangely nebulous war, he commissions Yukiko's father to catch an elusive arashitora, a creature part-eagle and part-tiger. Yukiko's quest to survive becomes more challenging... An "innovative setting, fast-moving plot, vivid descriptions, and thrilling action scenes make this a refreshing addition to the steampunk canon." – Publisher's Weekly

THE SHAMBLING GUIDE TO NEW YORK CITY

LAFFERTY, Mur
"When Zoe takes a job editing a new travel-book series for Underground Publications, she needs to decide whether to get paid in hell notes, blood tokens, occult favors, or regular dollars. In Lafferty's entirely believable world, New York City is secretly inhabited by vampires, zombies, fey folk, and assorted monsters. Public Works not only takes care of streets and sanitation, they are also responsible for keeping the balance between humans and coterie - the preferred term for nonhumans. Zoe's pretty tough, and she thinks she can handle her assignment of creating a coterie guidebook to the city. But she's ill-prepared for what awaits her in the underworld and soon finds herself succumbing to the erotic advances of an incubus coworker, tracking down raging zombies, and ultimately getting involved in an epic battle for the (literal) soul of the city. This is a funny, thoughtfully conceived, and thoroughly entertaining romp that will be a sure bet for urban-fantasy readers and might even surprise people who don't think they'd enjoy a paranormal novel." - Booklist

LOVE MINUS EIGHTY

MCINTOSH, Will
In the 21st century, death is not necessarily permanent; if the victim is attractive enough to gain the attention of someone who can afford the costly revivification procedures, the frozen corpse (or "bridesicle") may choose a permanent marriage contract, exchanging his or her freedom for a second chance at life. When Rob accidentally kills a woman, he is so haunted by his action that he becomes one of her suitors, funded by an anonymous benefactor. His story catches the attention of a media and public hungry for vicarious experiences. Eventually the woman, known only as Winter, accepts a proposal, becoming the literal property of a man she comes to despise. As resistance to the ethics of bridesicles grows, Rob becomes part of a dangerous plan to change the world. "...[A] book that thrilled and delighted me as a reader, chilling and touching at the same time, a great story that stimulates the mind, the heart and the nerves." - Charles Yu

THE DAEDALUS INCIDENT

MARTINEZ, Michael J.
"In the 22nd century, a geological survey team working with Earth's second largest mining company encounters a series of freak ground quakes on the surface and in some of the mining caverns of Mars... Lt. Sheila Jain, heading the U.S./EU Joint Space Command crew caught up in the initial quake, finds an ancient journal exposed by the tremors that is writing itself. It is the diary of Lt. Thomas Weatherby of His Majesty's Royal Navy, who records his first voyage aboard the HMS "Daedalus" across the Void between the known worlds, including Mars... Martinez's debut is a triumph of genre-blending, as steampunk adventure merges with modern space opera." – Library Journal

WILLIAMSON, Michael Z.
Alex Marlow and Ripple Creek Security's best personal security detail return to action. This time, they "really" don't like their principal, World Bureau Minister Joy Herman Highland-a highly-placed bureaucrat with aspirations to elected office. With a person of this status, it's not a case of someone wanting her dead. The only question is how "many" people want her dead, and what are they bringing to the fight?
