ADVENTURES IN THE STRAND: ARTHUR CONAN DOYLE AND THE STRAND MAGAZINE

ASHLEY, Mike
From 1891, until his death in 1930, almost 300 contributions by Doyle were published in The Strand: including 120 stories, nine serialised novels, and dozens of other items including poetry and interviews. It is impossible fully to appreciate Conan Doyle's artistic development without considering the context of The Strand – as it published almost all, of his most memorable and important stories; but it also published essays, commentary and other works that have become unjustly forgotten. This study charts his outlook and views, examines his shifting reputation during his lifetime, and assesses how Doyle's contributions to The Strand fit into his overall output as a writer. Published by the British Library.

Desperate Margareta Seymore is with child – and her husband is receiving poisoned pen letters that imply that her condition is the result of an affair with the notorious actor Fletcher Cavendish. Margareta asks Rosalind to find out who is behind the scurrilous letters. But before she can make any progress, Cavendish is found dead, stabbed through the heart. Suddenly, Rosalind is plunged into the middle of one of the most sensational murder trials London has ever seen, and her client's husband is the prime suspect. With the help of the charming Bow Street runner Adam Harkness, she must drop the curtain on this fatal drama before any more lives are ruined.
